FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

gSource Announces Opening of Instrument Repair Center

Emerson, NJ (August 11, 2017) --- gSource, LLC announces the opening of an Instrument Repair Center located within their company headquarters. The gSource Repair Center offers instrument sharpening, spring and screw replacement and refurbishing repair services to ensure quality performance during the entire life of an instrument. Highly skilled in-house repair technicians will expertly sharpen, refurbish and repair gSource instruments, and other instrument brands, according to gSource Verified Quality standards.

"We are pleased to be able to open our Instrument Repair Center in response to the needs of our customers. Our customers invest in high quality surgical instruments because they know the value of purchasing a better instrument. A better instrument reduces distractions and facilitates surgical procedures. It helps a surgeon perform at his/her best and leads to better results. Proper care, maintenance and repair are essential to extending the life of an instrument. Refurbishing helps bring the instrument back to "like-new" condition, enabling an instrument to maintain its optimal function while also reducing the customer's replacement cost. With the services provided by our Instrument Repair Center, customers can be confident that their instruments will function properly during critical surgical procedures and will be returned to them in a timely and economical manner. Our superior customer service teamed with our expert instrument repair technicians will ensure customers receive an excellent repair service", commented Gerd Billmann, President of gSource.
